Ten years in limbo

July 2023 marks ten years since Kevin Rudd's government ruled that those arriving by boat to seek asylum would never settle in Australia.

This policy was zealously enforced over nine years of Coalition governments and continues to be enforced under the Albanese government.

As a result, since 2013, thousands of people seeking asylum have been brutally detained under Australia's offshore processing regime in Nauru and PNG.

There is overwhelming evidence of serious abuse, medical negligence, and high levels of self-harm under the offshore detention system. There have been fourteen deaths in this terrible situation.

Every person sent off-shore is still prevented from settling permanently in Australia, including:

>> over 1000 people medically evacuated from Nauru and PNG since 2013, including the young people and families evacuated from Nauru (in response to the Kids Off Nauru campaign) >> the 80 people still held in PNG under the offshore processing system.

Many of these people have no pathways to permanent resettlement anywhere.

They live in limbo.

And, despite the transfer of the remaining refugees from Nauru in June 2023, the Albanese Labor government will continue to spend up to $350 million per year to keep the Nauru detention facility open.

The Albanese government must grant permanent visas to all refugees, remove the ban on resettlement and end off-shore detention once and for all!

It is time to give those who have been stuck in limbo for up to a decade, a permanent home right now!

After ten years of trauma, it is time to end this cruelty.
